Building to Preserve Local History

The colorful history of the Sumpter Valley Railway begins in 1890, when construction of the narrow gauge steam powered line began in Baker City. Built mainly to haul timber the tracks reached McEwen in 1892 and the gold mining town of Sumpter in 1896. At its height the mainline stretched over 80 miles to Prairie City, and the Sumpter Valley Railway became a vital part of the settlement and development of the eastern Oregon region it served. However, business declined in the 1930's, and by 1947, most of the railway had been abandoned.

In 1971, a small group of dedicated volunteers set out to save what was left of this beloved icon of eastern Oregon. For over forty years the Sumpter Valley Railroad Restoration, Inc. has been dedicated to rebuilding this remnant of the past for the enjoyment and education of future generations. Since the first excursion train pulled out of McEwen station in 1976, an almost all volunteer staff has rebuilt over six miles of rail line, fully restored two original steam locomotives, refurbished numerous pieces of rolling stock, and constructed all the facilities it takes to run a railroad.

Be sure to ask us how you can become a volunteer and help preserve our railroad heritage.
